Most Vegetables Plentiful and Quotations About Normal-Eggs at Lower Level.

With the exception of potatoes, garden products of all kinds are being received on the markets here in good quantities, and in the past week there has been a decided drop in wholesale quotations. The dealers state that prices here are now about normal for the season, and that there is no basis for high retail prices on peas, beans, cucumbers, onions, beets and other summer vegetables. As yet the bulk of the supply is coming from the south, though the nearby gardens are beginning to send stuff to the markets, and by the end of the coming week the home-grown supply should be plentiful and low-priced.

and low-priced. Eggs, which have been soaring have ropped three cents a dozen wholesale in the past week, and for choice the top of the market this morning was 35 cents a dozen. The retail market should not be over 40 cents a dozen for the best grade of eggs.

Wholesale Dealers Say.

While the dealers in sea food at the wholesale market on the wharf report the supply of fish received as being fair, the demand is good and the supply is quickly absorbed. Most of the fish offered for sale are coming from the nets on the coast, the catch of the Potomac fishing fleet being, as yet, light.

Prices this morning, compared with those of a week ago, are lower as a general thing, and range about as follows: Roe shad, 80 cents to $1 each; buck shad, 35 to 50 cents each; rock, 15 to 16 cents a pound; perch, 10 cents to $1 a bunch; carp, 3 to 5 cents a pound; pike, 10 to 12½ cents a pound; affish, 4 to 6 cents a pound; sand perch, 4 to 5 cents a pound; tile, 6 to 7 cents a pound; halibut, 15 to 17 cents a pound; trout, $4 to $12 a barrel; croakers, $4 to $6 a barrel and flounders, $7 to $9 a barrel. Crabs, both hard and soft shelled, are scarce and high priced, though at this season they should be lowering.
